CONTRACTOR SUMMER EDITION • 2023 N E W S L E T T E R RCA Awards Over $25,000 in Scholarships

RCA's scholarship program partners with Construction Management and Construction Sciences programs at universities throughout the United States to find the top students in the field. We ask schools to identify their top candidates, who complete an application that includes a statement describing what the RCA Scholarship would mean to them. One student, with a declared construction major, from each school was selected to receive a $3,000 scholarship to be used for the Fall 2023 semester.

Funded by our members, this national scholarship program benefits the education of future industry leaders and helps increase awareness of the career opportunities available in retail construction.

Get to know our 2023 scholarship recipients through their own words, with excerpts from their personal statements below.

Luka Kosor, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Major: Construction Management

"I am the Captain of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) Production Home Competition Team. In this competition, I lead a team of 15 members and have designed and conducted pre-construction tasks such as estimating and scheduling for a 370-unit single-family detached housing development. Last year, when I was just a team member and presenter, we won first place in the nation.

the nation. After I graduate, I plan to work full-time with a large commercial general contractor as a Project Engineer working on exciting new construction projects. I would love to go the Superintendent route and start as an Assistant Superintendent. Acting as a Superintendent is a dream career of mine as I love to be in the field problem solving, coordinating with subs, creating site logistics plans, and scheduling."

Brennan Lantzy, Texas A&M University, Major: Construction Science

"I enjoy setting the pace of things, helping the people around me be the best version of themselves, and initiating action. I also love learning from others and strive to be a humble follower, a charitable supporter, and a joyful contributor to anything I am a part of.

I would love to come back to Texas A&M and teach as a professor in the Department of Construction Science. I cannot express in words how much my professors have impacted my life, and the learning, friendships, and dedication I have received from them have been truly beautiful. I hope to one day impact the lives of upcoming generations pursuing construction careers by developing their learning."

Ryan Michon, Brigham Young University, Major: Construction Management

"I strive to be personable, approachable, and helpful to other students. I like creating strong and memorable relationships with others. I do this because I know they will go out and make great differences in the world, and I take joy in being encouraging and kind to help them get there.

My ideal career would be working for a commercial contractor taking the project management career path. I would hope to sign on with a commercial contractor starting as a Project Engineer and working my way up the ladder. From there, I would be able to continue to progress because of my love for learning and my love for people. Based on my experience thus far, I've learned that both of those things can set you up for success in the project management side of construction. You must be able to communicate well with people, then create and maintain relationships as you work with others, especially those on your team."

Alina Katherine Stark, Clemson University, Major: Construction Science and Management

"This past summer, I had the opportunity to manage a three-week rework job for a commercial concrete contractor. While working on that project, my learning and education rocketed forward. I conquered the challenges that came with being the only woman on site, but my biggest challenge was being younger than my crew and colleagues because the benefit of the doubt couldn't be assumed. You learn the difference between a manager and a leader; a manager demands respect, a leader earns respect, and I had no other choice but to earn it.

After graduation, I will pursue the superintendent route for a commercial GC and continue to advocate for construction. I chose the path of superintendent because my leadership embodies the idea of never asking your team to do something that you wouldn't do yourself. By pursuing a field management position, I can be a better leader and watch the magnificent creation that will endure the testament of time. There is no feeling like watching nothing become something and a place to create memories for decades to come."

Morgan Trechter, Catholic University of America, Major: Civil Engineering (Construction Management concentration)

"Throughout my education, I have earned several leadership positions including the Society of Women Engineers (SWE) and the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) to push my professional development outside of the classroom. These opportunities have helped me grow into a better leader and have helped me understand how to work with other people, which is an extremely important skill, especially in construction management. My dream career is to work my way up through a general contractor to become a vice president in construction management. I want to experience all aspects of construction management and give back what I have learned through my career. I have been working on building a strong foundation for myself to make a positive impact in the construction field, which will ultimately benefit the communities where I manage construction projects."

me understand h

Ryan Michon

RCA's mission is to promote professionalism and integrity in retail construction through industry leadership in education, information exchange, and jobsite safety.

Cade Wilson, Kansas State University, Major: Construction Science and Management

"While I am pursuing my degree in Construction Science, I would like to grow in my knowledge and understanding of the construction industry. I plan on accomplishing this by being involved in Associated General Contractors. AGC provides opportunities to tour local jobsites and meet with employers.

It is important to me to make a positive impact on the world. An ideal career for me would be combining my passion for Construction Science with my faith and pursuing a career overseas. I would love to be able to serve underdeveloped areas around the world. Through this I would be able to change the lives and eternities of others, which is very important to me."

Kennedy Henderson, East Carolina University, Major: Construction Management

"I plan to pursue a career in commercial construction. After graduation, I will use my knowledge and education to jump straight into the construction industry working as a project manager. The Retail Contractors Association Scholarship allows me to focus more on the most important aspect of school: learning. I hope one day I will be able to help other students achieve their goals just as you have helped me."

Taylor Lundsten, Minnesota State University, Mankato, Major: Construction Management

Taylor received the Christian Elder Memorial Scholarship, named in memory of Christian Elder, who died in 2007 at the age of 38. Christian was a project manager with Elder-Jones, Inc., a charter member of the RCA. Christian's father, and RCA past president. "Throughout college, my family has encouraged me to get involved in both activities in my major and others across campus. I have been involved in Cru (Campus Crusade for Christ) and have made meaningful connections with Construction Management faculty and students. Being involved with Cru has been a very meaningful experience, as I have been able to make strong connections with other students, strengthen my faith, and work on my communication skills. With CM faculty, I have been able to make connections with professors through classes and advising sessions which has given me security that I picked the perfect major for me."

Emilia Salazar, Boise State University, Major: Construction Management

Emilia received RCA's Intern Scholarship, which is awarded to a student who completed an internship at an RCA member company. The award criteria are the same as the main scholarship program: the scholarship award is $1,500. Emilia joined the concrete division of ESI Construction (Engineered Structures, Inc.) in the summer of 2022. Emilia's nomination described her experience at

Emilia Salazar

ESI Construction:

"Emilia is an ambassador in the field for ESI - listening to those around her and finding ways that she can lend a helping hand. She often shares her knowledge with carpenters and other team members on her job site. Emilia embodies ESI's Purpose of 'Everyone Succeeds Together,' by communicating up and down the chain of command. She'll often engage in conversations with carpenters on her job site to learn from them, while also explaining why they are performing certain tasks.

With a 'no person left behind' mentality, Emilia dedicates her time and talent to making sure that contributors on ESI projects understand how to do work safely and understand "the why" behind their work. Emilia is also involved in the Associated Schools of Construction (ASC) Competition. She is currently on the Electrical team, which will be competing in Sparks, Nevada, in the coming months."

President's Message

Eric Handley, COO., William A. Randolph, Inc. (RANDOLPH)

At this year's Annual meeting, I was honored to take over for Ray Catlin as the new President of the RCA. Ray did an outstanding job of leading the organization through a difficult period and I am fortunate to take over this position with an incredibly strong organization to lead.

In the coming year, we have some exciting plans that we intend to execute that will enhance the organization and, in turn, all member companies. We will be implementing many of the ideas that have come from our strategic planning sessions and the initiatives that are currently underway with our committees.

One of the most important goals that we set was to increase participation amongst our members and to enhance the level of communication the RCA provides to our members. We firmly believe that we can solve many of the challenges we all face as Contractors by working together and combining our resources to better the industry as a whole.

We can solve many of the challenges we all face by working together and combining our resources to better the industry as a whole.

The attendance at the Annual Meeting was a great first step, as not only did we have an outstanding turnout, we had a broad representation from our member companies that included Owners, Executives, Project Managers and Superintendents, all participating throughout the weekend. We have since held Regional Events in New York and Atlanta, both of which were very well attended and allowed for great networking and idea sharing. We have some great momentum and intend to keep this going throughout the rest of the year.

Increased participation in RCA committees, beyond current Board Members, is another key goal for this year, as we have set aggressive goals and need broad participation to accomplish them. I strongly encourage you to participate in a committee, as it gives you an immediate conduit to make a difference, to share your ideas, and to make memorable connections with other RCA members. Please reach out to me or Carol Montoya (carol@retailcontractors. org) if you would like to get involved in any of the committees below.

I'm proud to feature the recipients of the RCA Scholarships and the RCA Intern Scholarship in this issue. All of our organizations can continue to build the next generation of leaders and construction professionals with your support of the RCA Scholarship program and by hiring interns/college graduates directly into your organization.

As we enter the summer months, the Construction Industry is at full tilt and we are all busier than ever. Don't forget to take some time for weekends at the lake, Summer BBQs, and just making memories with family and friends. I hope everyone enjoys the Summer and look forward to reconnecting with all of you at one of the many Regional Events planned for the coming months.

Google Analytics 4-Have You Made the Switch?

On July 1, Google updated it Universal Analytics (UA) to Google Analytics 4 (GA4). While the change was announced in 2022, many website hosts and developers did not communicate the change to their customers, and the update was NOT done automatically.

If you have UA installed on your website, as of July 1, UA stopped gathering data that measures website traffic.

Google Analytics is free, and the data collected helps you track and analyze website traffic. It's also important to have your previous data, to compare website traffic trends and the behavior of potential and/or existing customers behaviors (e.g., what areas of a website are being visited, what links are being clicked, what information is being downloaded, what videos are being watched, where visitors are geographically located, and so much more). RCA members heard from Tam Johnson, Elephant Digital Marketing Solutions, daughter of RCA past president Win Johnson,, and Gerald Buckley, GB Digital, on a Zoom meeting held last month. They discussed the importance of updating Analytics and the process for doing so. Tam and Gerald shared the following effects If you have NOT upgraded to GA4 yet:

- Google has said that sites that currently have UA, have a six-month window to "hopefully" retrieve a company's past analytics.
- No analytics will be collected between July 1 and the time of the upgrade to GA4.
- There is still time to upgrade your site and keep past analytics, but there will be a lapse in the GA4 analytics until it is installed.

- If your Google Analytics dashboard shows "No Analytics Tag Installed," you need to install GA4 to start collecting data.
- If you used the GA4 Setup Assistant and are receiving GA Error messages, it can be repaired, but in the meantime, analytics more than likely are not being collected.

Talk to your IT staff or support vendor about the status of the Google Analytics installed on your website. Tam and Gerald have teamed up to offer assistance to our members and colleagues, including a reasonable rate of $150.00 to upgrade your website to GA4, which includes the link to see your Google Analytics. If you don't have someone that can look up your GA status, or you want help setting up GA4, you can reach Tam at tam@elephantdigitalmarketingsolutions.com.
